Stabenow Accepts Statewide Debate Invite From WGVU-TV

U.S. Senator Debbie Stabenow today accepted an invitation from the WGVU-TV to participate in their U.S. Senate General Election Candidate Debate. WGVU, the PBS station for West Michigan, is associated with Grand Valley State University. The debate will be held this October on a date and at a time to be determined and will be made available statewide to all Michigan PBS and NPR stations. Senator Stabenow's Republican opponent, Michael Bouchard, has also been extended an invitation to participate in the debate.

This is the second debate invitation Senator Stabenow has accepted for the general election campaign. In August Senator Stabenow accepted an invitation from the Detroit Economic Club, an invitation her challenger later also accepted. This debate, a traditional feature of the Michigan campaign season, will be held on October 18th.
